HEARD FROM OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

The following letter has been received by Mrs. M. Christian, 2 North Washington street, from her son, Arthur Christian, Company B, 28th Inf., A. E. F. In his letter Christian states that his arm, which was wounded some time ago, is healing, and that he expects it to be completely well again in a short time. He is on his way to Germany and describes his trip. His letter follows:

I am writing you a few lines to let you know that I am in the best of health. I just got back to my old company a few days ago. My arm is getting along fine. We are now on our way to Germany and we do a lot of hiking. We hike all day and sleep in villages and sometimes we sleep in barns and sometimes in tents. I met Captain Caldwell just before the last drive. I was in that drive of the 15th. He told me that father was dead, but I did not receive a letter dead, but you stating that father had died, but I feel real bad over it and will not soon forget it. I am longing to see God's country again, and that might be about four months. I am traveling to different towns every day, and France is a very beautiful country. I like it very much. When I left the hospital it was like leaving home. I was there four months. I suppose things at home are very high, but over here it is twice as high. It is about seven months since I have received my pay. I am going to close my letter because I must go to drill.

ARTHUR CHRISTIAN.

Get 7 Per Cent for YOUR Money

We are selling "across the counter" direct to Milwaukee and Wisconsin people an issue of $3,600,000 of 7%, 5-year, bond-secured Gold Notes of The Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Company. More than a million dollars' worth of the Notes have been bought in the first 30 days, mostly by Milwaukee people who know the Company and the property.

Issuance and sale of these Notes was authorized by the Wisconsin Railroad Commission to finance the growth of greater Milwaukee's electric service system.

Principal of the Notes will be repaid in cash Nov. 1, 1923.

These Notes are on sale in $50, $100, $500 and $1,000 sizes. They sell at par. Your Notes start drawing 7% interest for you from the day you buy them. You draw interest twice a year—May 1 and Nov. 1—by simply cutting off your interest coupon, taking it to the nearest bank, and getting cash for it. These Notes are readily saleable in case of need.

Milwaukee is as solidly prosperous as any city in the world. This Company supplies virtually all of Milwaukee's electric power, light, heat and transportation services. The State-appraised value of the property back of the Notes exceeds funded debt by over $16,000,000. The State rate regulation law assures a reasonable yearly return on State-appraised value. Besides being a general obligation of The Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Company, these Notes are further secured by deposit of $4,500,000 of 40-year bonds of the Milwaukee Light, Heat & Traction Company with the First Trust Company of Milwaukee as Trustee for the Note buyers. These Companies, thus joint guarantors of these Notes, during their twenty-two years in business have never failed to pay on the due date every dollar of their obligations, with interest as agreed.

Is YOUR MONEY earning 7% with equal SAFETY? If not, we shall be glad to sell you some of these Notes.

Janesville buyers are asked to ORDER DIRECT FROM THE COMPANY. Address: SECURITIES DEPARTMENT, Public Service Building, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. You can send payment with order, or, if you wish it, we will deliver the Notes in care of your home bank, C. O. D. If your home banker advises you not to buy these Notes, and tries to sell you something else paying a lower interest rate, you can tell him the Milwaukee banks have bought hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of these Notes, for themselves and their customers.

Farm Accounts and the Farm Calendar

The government income report is a mighty hard and inconvenient thing to make out unless you have at hand the data recording your purchases and expenditures during the twelve months past. The Janesville Daily Gazette has for distribution, a calendar produced especially for farm accounts which is the simplest accounting system yet devised. Any opportunity is given to enter under the date of the month you buy or sell or pay out or receive any money directly on the calendar pad, which totaled at the end of the month, gives an exact record of all transactions. Anyone can make these entries and the records are then preserved there to the end of the year.

If you have made out an income report to the government without some form of income record, you will remember how difficult it was to answer the questions intelligently. This calendar is unique and complete, is easily handled and is designed especially for farm use. It will save more time and trouble than you ever dreamed of. There is no confusion or guesswork and it helps you at a time when you most need it. This calendar is sent to anyone on receipt of 10c or is free with a year's subscription to the Daily Gazette.

ANOTHER STEP FORWARD.
The project of establishing a community center for women, which will provide sufficient room for carrying out a program of recreation and comfort for young women employed in the city as well as giving more desirable facilities for the women of the rural communities who come to Janesville to shop and transact business, is moving rapidly.

The members' council of the Chamber of Commerce endorsed the plan for larger quarters at its luncheon, Monday. This means that it will have the support of the men who are doing the big things in Janesville.
The women back of the plan to enlarge quarters have been working out the details and looking over sites, and it is probable that they will have something definite to report in a few days.

Janesville Center, which although small, has been greatly appreciated by the women who have used it as a place in which to rest while in the downtown district. As its usefulness grows in larger quarters, there is little doubt but that the small beginning made by a few thoughtful men and women will expand until we will have a community building, modern in every respect, in which the real aims of those back of the project may be successfully carried out.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL.
Without going into an extended argument on government ownership, it is obvious that government control of public utilities has not been successful.

The director of railroads is facing the problem of raising $250,000,000 to meet a prospective deficit for 1919.
Director General Hines and his regional directors in a meeting last week went over the situation. They discussed the following means of raising sufficient funds to carry on: Increased freight rates; appropriation by congress of a fund to meet the deficit; operating economies; increased volume of traffic and reduction of wages.

No matter what the final disposition of the railroad problem may be, the money to operate the roads must be had in 1919 and the means of obtaining it is causing some anxiety. Increased freight rates will load another burden on the public which is gamely footing the bills; appropriation by congress will also mean the taxpayer must pay. Operating economies will mean the curtailing of services. Under government control the telephone companies face a deficit and the postmaster general, without even evident authority, announces that toll rates of the companies will be raised.

Sizing government ownership up from the angle of the men who have to pay the freight, it has not been a howling success.

NEED OF FARM HELP.

Uncle Sam is calling upon his younger boys this week to enroll in the Boys' Reserve so that next summer when the crops need attention he will have enough to handle them.
Janesville boys responded readily to the call last year and indications point to a large enrollment this year.

One of the principal signs of winter weather is a case of very cold feet on the part of everybody who has to pay the present prices of provisions.
—Marquette Eagle-Star.

Back Em Up.
Are our heroic American boys fighting so valiantly in the intense cold of northern Russia, going to be left to perish? Or will the government properly reinforce them and get them back to their own homes?—
Racine Journal-News.

Cut Out the Oratory.
There has been a lot of talk about "what the country owes its soldiers." Before indulging in any more oratory on the subject the country had better show a little concrete evidence of intention to pay what it owes.—Appleton Crescent.

Use the classified ads if you have anything to sell; they will surely tell it for you.

The winter wheat acreage speaks a volume in regard to the need for farm help. Three or four men will be needed to harvest what one man has planted—and there has been no claim that there was a surplus of labor for
the planting operations.

The department of agriculture
plans to maintain its organization that aided in supplying farm labor in 1918. It will aim to tap every source of emergency help—men, women and girls from the cities, the Boys' Working Reserve, and other organizations of that sort.

The main effort of the department, however, is to be centered on placing men permanently as helpers on the farms. Permanent labor, employed the year around under good living conditions and at fair wages, is believed to be one of the prime needs of literally millions of American farmers.

"Many soldiers and men who have left the farms for war industries—
and figures show that war industries took more men from the farms than were given to the army—are expected to return to the farms if they are offered permanent and profitable employment."

"What is the farmer's part in making farm labor permanent? In the first place, department officials believe, every farm that has an idle period during a part of the year should so plan its operations that there will be work through every season. Crops can be rotated, live stock fed, dairying pursued, and poultry produced. These activities, added to grain production, will solve the problem in many sections, it is believed.

"Large numbers of married men should be working on the farms, it is stated. To get them, better tenant houses are needed—many cases, and permanent employment is a prime necessity. To help meet the need for good tenant houses, the department has developed plans for model structures."

"One feature of the department's work deals with stimulating co-operation and exchange of labor among farmers. For example, it recently has listed the heads of more than 1,000 threshing rings in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan. These rings include from three to twenty farms and involve not only the co-operative purchase of a threshing machine, but also the co-operative arrangement of crews for harvesting and threshing."

"The plan has proved so successful that the same idea is spreading to other kinds of farm work which can best be handled by crews or teams of men."

COMFORT STATIONS.
Senator Bird hit the nail squarely when, in explaining his vote in the state senate on the prohibition amendment, when he said that social conditions and other social meeting places must be provided to take the place of the saloon.

The saloon is not supported by the drunkards. As a source of revenue the "spoke" is a negligible factor as a class. The saloon lives on the street and trades on the man who drops in to avail himself of its hospitality and reciprocates by buying a drink or a cigar, which often has its only value in the fact that it is bought just to reciprocate hospitality.

The saloon has long been recognized as a "public" institution, a place where the stranger can find toilets, warmth and rest without charge—at a price he can afford to pay, the price of the drink or the smoke that he buys in reciprocity.

Let's get down to facts for once.
Without recognition of fundamental principles, reforms are useless. Prohibition is not prevention. Let's offer something that will supply the very real human need that the saloon has been filling—not the liquor which is the source of the evils—but the other things. Let Janesville consider some plan to institute public toilets and rest rooms—not pretentious places that cost a great deal to build—but several small places, conveniently located throughout the business part of the city where they will serve the most people. The cost would not be great; the benefits can hardly be measured in dollars.

Postmaster General Burleson has put the increased telephone toll rates into effect regardless of protests from states. Burleson says the rates will stand regardless of any action the post office will take. Let him alone and he will muddle up the telephone system as thoroughly as he has tangled the postoffice department.

Well, Madison can relax a little, although the legislature is in session.
It has been determined that the city went dry by a single vote, according to final results of a recount which has kept the citizens of the capital on edge for nearly a year.

Some of the Blackhaws are coming back soon. Let us prepare for a welcome that will make them feel that the hardships they have endured in camp and on the seas have been well worth while.

The winter wheat acreage speaks
a volume in regard to the need for farm help. Three or four men will be needed to harvest what one man has
that there was a surplus of labor for
the planting operations.

The department of agriculture
plans to maintain its organization
that aided in supplying farm labor in 1918. It will aim to tap every source of emergency help—men, women and
girls from the cities, the Boys' Working Reserve, and other organizations
of that sort.

The main effort of the department, however, is to be centered on
placing men permanently as helpers
on the farms. Permanent labor, employed the year around under good
living conditions and at fair wages, is believed to be one of the prime needs
of literally millions of American farmers.

and figures show that war industries
took more men from the farms than
were given to the army—are expected
to return to the farms if they are offered permanent and profitable employment."

"What is the farmer's part in making farm labor permanent? In the first place, department officials believe, every farm that has an idle
period during a part of the year
should so plan its operations that there will be work through every sea-

son. Crops can be rotated, live stock
fed, dairying pursued, and poultry
produced. These activities, added to grain production, will solve the problem in many sections, it is believed.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF GRIEF.
I've thought of life more or less,
And talked of failure and success
And misery and want and woe
And all conditions here below.
I've seen men rise and seen them fall,
Met rich and poor and great and small,
And learned this truth: throughout our years,
That we are brothers in our tears.

Not everybody knows success.
There are degrees of happiness And there are heights of art and skill.
Some have not reached and never will.
Men are divided in their creeds,
They differ in their daily deeds.
But to this common fate we're born:
Who learns to love must also mourn.

No caste or class or high belief Escapes the certain touch of grief.
No man can grow so strong or great
That he can bar to death his gate;
When shadows o'er his pathway creep,
He, like the poorest men, shall weep.
The self-same heartaches make us know
That we are brothers in our woe.

So rich with poor may sympathize,
For tears to very eye must rise,
And unto every heart must come The grief which leaves it cold and numb.
In care we find the common plan
Which molds the brotherhood of man.
This tie shall bind us through the years;
That we are brothers in our tears.

DISEASES OF CATTLE

Allen B. West.
To produce the millions of quarts of milk that have put Wisconsin in the lead as the greatest dairy state an immense number of cattle is kept on her farms. Of all the diseases to which these animals are subject the abortion disease is by far the most common and important. Although there are some vital questions about this disease that remain unanswered and must await the results of experiments now under way to shed light upon obscure conditions, it is necessary that the known facts be made accessible to those interested in the disease. Wisconsin has made in dairying must not fail.

It is estimated that about 8 per cent of all milk cows abort each year because of this abortion disease. On this basis the animal loss would be about $3,670,000. The term abortion disease is applied to that affection of cattle that is produced as a result of the invasion of the body by a certain germ, that can be transmitted to other animals, that affects several animals in many herds, and that runs a course of weeks or even months. Although it is known that abortion disease may disappear as suddenly from the herd as it appeared, yet there is far greater probability that it will be permanent in the herds for years, breaking more than 50 per cent of the cows have aborted and 75 per cent have become infected. In case a cow is attacked by the disease the calf is either born dead or it is born alive but it soon dies. Often there is a reduction in the milk flow for nearly a year.
Frequently the afterbirth is retained and pus accumulates in the womb.
Corns on the udder or other local diseases may be due to contagion and the poisoning or in sterility. Even if the cow is not rendered sterile it is probable that abortion will recur a second or even a third time. The abortion disease is due to contagion and the sooner the cattle owner realizes this the sooner he will be able to prevent further losses.

It is known that a ration composed of wheat and other products of the wheat plant reduces the relative power of the cow to all diseases and often causes her to calve prematurely.

THE HEAVENS IN FEBRUARY

FEBRUARY

(By Dr. C. S. Brainin of the Columbia University Observatory Staff.)

The February evening sky is fortunate in possessing both Jupiter and Saturn, the largest planets of the solar system. Jupiter will be found almost overhead, making a fine triangle with the heavenly twins, Castor and Pollux. Further to the east is Saturn, quite close to the royal star Regulus of the constellation of Leo. Mars and Venus also may be observed this month; they are close together in the western sky, and may be looked for just after sunset, as they both disappear below the horizon before the time of our map. It is not a very common occurrence that on a single fine evening all these planets should be observable, and it is an opportunity well worth advantage of. Another thing which favors the amateur astronomer this month is that all the planets are in positions which make very easy to recognize.

The Satellites of Saturn. I had occasion last month to discuss the famous rings of the planet Saturn and some of the interesting historical facts in connection with them. Very few people know that Saturn possesses also a numerous family of satellites, no less than nine. One of these is even visible in a small telescope, though perhaps not as easily observable as the four large moons of Jupiter. Galileo did not discover this satellite; it was first observed and recognized in 1656 by Huyghens, the same who discovered the true nature of the mysterious appendages of Saturn reported by Galileo. Of the remainder, four were discovered by Cassini, two by William Herschel, one by Bond and Lassell, and the latest by W. H. Pickering as late as 1939. The largest, Titan, has a diameter of about 3,000 miles and is therefore larger than our own satellite. The distance of Saturn is, however, so great that the sizes of the satellites cannot be accurately measured, but must be judged from their brightness only.

Sickle, and the curved line of stars which trace out the blade is easily recognizable from Regulus northward. Denebola is not a very bright star, but it is interesting, because the great regard in which the ancients held this star and the mention they make of it show that its brilliancy must have once been considerably greater than at present.

Leo Minor, the Lesser Lion, is a "modern" constellation, as the stars which compose it were not put into an independent group until the seventeenth century, but previously had been counted as parts of Leo and the neighboring Ursa Major. Within the curve of the Dipper handle, in the Great Bear, is another small group called Coma Venatici, the Hunting Dogs. This group contains one of the finest specimens of the spiral nebula in the entire heavens. It is also interesting to know because once an astronomer tried to honor King Charles II of England by naming the brightest star of the group Cor Caroli, Heart of Charles. This move met its proper fate at the hands of his colleagues and successors.

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

Here is the very best press agent story we have received this year and it is all about Irene Rich, the Buffalo girl who upset all "movie" precedents by becoming a leading woman over night. She was an orphan and a clerk in a department store until she took her courage and determined to even her odds and made her way to Los Angeles. Camouflaging the dreadful truth of her screen inexperience almost resulted in her swift dismissal from the studio when it was found she knew nothing of the make-up and had never been before a movie camera in all her young life. Luck in the shape of Kitty Gordon, now known as her rescuee Miss Gordon, kindly taught her the mysteries of the grease paint and in "Adele" she did so well and photographed so wonderfully that Miss Rich was given the job of leading lady in Dustin Farnum's next picture, "A Man in the Open."

There was no girlish romance about my going into pictures," said Miss Rich, "I deliberately decided to do what I could do. I admit luck was with me—and of course luck might not be with the next who tries it."

Of course, we expected to get many more such yarns before the next New Year's eve, but this is pretty good for a starter. Maybe the next star will spring from a munitions plant or something like that.

"The Master Mystery" starring Houdini, the Handcuff King, will be shown to the inmates of Sing Sing prison, New York, under the auspices of the Mutual Welfare League. The episode will be shown each Tuesday. The announcement that the Houdini serial was to be shown made a hit with the inmates of Sing Sing, according to Lewis Jacobs, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Mutual Welfare League.

DOLLS FOR THEIR FAVORITE

It is said that Margaret Clark, the Paramount star, received more dolls for Christmas than any child in America. The gifts were sent from children all over the country who wished to have Margaret enjoy the type of doll that they themselves prefer. Miss Clark, who has recently been married, admits that she likes dolls, but fears that her husband might object to seeing them all over their Central Park West apartment, so she is going to send them to the poor children of the city. This does not mean, however, that she did not appreciate her Christmas gifts, but she believes that the real children will put them to more practical use than she could.

Peter was left in the house and told not to leave until mother returned from the store. When she came back she found a sheet of paper on the door saying: "I'm playing with Ray. The key is under the rock on the step. No one but mother go in."

The Drawback.

There are just as good fish in the sea as were ever caught—but they may be a trifle shy when it comes to swallowing the bait.

IN THE BACK YARD.

(This week's mystery.) The house was isolated. It was situated on an island. There was water all around it and nobody would go near the place. For miles around the houses were empty—people would move in on hour and move out the next minute after. Nowhere near the house was there a human being. It was very strange for the number 13 could not be found anywhere on the house or grounds. "There was passing strange. All the house was occupied, nobody was ever seen outside of it. The sole occupant was an old man and his wife—hermits. But what was the trouble? Most certainly something was wrong. Otherwise humanity in some form would be seen around the grounds of someone else's house. It certainly was mysterious. Could it be that the house was haunted? Yes, it could be. And if haunted, were the old people aware of it? And if so, how could they live there, how could they? Well, perhaps they were blind and deaf. That must be it! For, if the house was haunted and they lived there they could do so very easily if they were blind and deaf, for then all the ghostly specters, spectating around would not be seen and their groans and means and clanking chains would not be heard. And because it was haunted must be the reason why all the other people on the island kept away from it and averted their faces and held their breaths when anyone mentioned the house. But, no! None of these things are the reasons. The old people were very fond of sauer-graft an kept an odorous-very odorous, tank of it in their back yard. That was the reason.

TIPPECANOE

Being a True Chronicle of Certain Passages Between DAVID O'BANNON and ANTOINETTE O'BANNON in the Battle of Tippecanoe in the Indiana Wilderness, and of What Befell thereafter in Old Corydon and now first set forth By SAMUEL MCCOY Illustrations by De Alton Valentine.

"You've already called me by mine," said the girl, "I'm Toinette." David blushed fiercely. "I—there wasn't time—I had heard your father call you by name—"

"Never mind," laughed the girl. "I owe you my life—names don't matter now."

"You'll honor me by being my guest, sir," went on Mr. O'Bannon. "Sure, the fairies sent ye here at this minute."

David became conscious of his ragged clothes.

"Thank you, no," he said, "but if you can help me to find work—"

"Ho, hum!" said the little old gentleman. "Ye must find work—but first tell me, have ye eaten a Hoosier middie meal yet?"

"I thought not. We'll go up to Conrod's tavern and see what he can give us before ye begin to talk about huntin' for wurruk. A step, sir."

And with a last glance at the tangled thing that lay in the grass, he linked his arm in David's, and bobbing ridiculously along, led him through the woods.

Toinette walked on the other side. David moved in a happy dream. They reached the door of Conrod's tavern, east of the village—a square, low house of stone, two feet thick in the walls and with the most picturesque of small-paned windows, vine-curtained—Mr. O'Bannon accompanying his jerky progress with a flow of eloquence on the advantages of Corydon, where, it seemed, he and his daughter had recently arrived from New Orleans.

"Hurrah," he exclaimed as they entered the low doorway. Here's Colonel Posey; he'll find something for you to do, be sure."

America's debt of gratitude to France for this is very great. PETEY DINK—He Who Laughs Last at a Fortune Teller—

A gentleman with hand outstretched to David's companion came forward. "A good morning to you, Mr. O'Bannon," he cried heartily.

A fine, compelling figure of a man was Colonel Thomas Posey, as he towered over little Mr. O'Bannon, who stood looking up at him with a sideways cock of the head. Splendidly he ye? Goodby and God bless you, my friend."

"Goodby, and good fortune!" As the departing guests went out they turned and looked back. The tall, soldierly man—one day to become governor of the young Indiana territory—was still framed in the cool shadow of the doorway. He waved a courtly hand—they waved gayly in return. Little old Mr. O'Bannon hopped smilingly to where the horses were tethered, not seeming to notice that Toinette had fallen a step behind and was waiting at David's side.

O'Bannon and Toinette mounted their horses, David lending a rather clumsy hand to the girl's assistance. He had always been afraid of girls, even ordinary ones, and Toinette O'Bannon, as a glance told, was not ordinary. David knew that there were men who would do small services for ladies with gallant grace, but he reflected bitterly, they were not men who had been humble weavers, who had hungered for bread, been arraigned for rioting and seen their fathers hanged.

And so they three went along the mile of track that led to Corydon, David striding by the side of the horse that bore Toinette, full of a thousand speculations as to the mysterious wilderness into which this new turn of fortune had plunged him. Seemingly Toinette thought him a squire not to be disdained, for several times she beamed on him with liking unmistakable—but always at a time when she was quite sure he was not looking.

CHAPTER II.

Corydon.

A short day's march north of the broad current of the Ohio, at the point where two rapid creeks—Big Indian and Little Indian—unite, stood a cluster of thirty or forty cabins. The logs that made the walls of the oldest of them had been growing in the virgin forest three years before. In the center of the village was a grassy square. In it a new stone house, forty feet square, its walls two and one-half feet thick, its roof still incomplete, stood in the shadow of the forest trees which had been left standing around it.

From the little settlement the primeval forest stretched away to the sand dunes of the Great Lakes, to the hills of the Ohio, to the prairies of the Illinois country, a vast tract of a hundred thousand square miles in extent; silent, inhabited only by savage beast and more savage redskinned hunter; pathless, dreadful, fascinating.

The settlement was Corydon; the stone house the building which was to be the first capitol of the territory and the state born from the virgin woods. Louisville, with 1,500 inhabitants, 20 miles to the east; Vincennes, the Old Post, with less than a thousand, 80 miles to the northwest; other than these, no settlement of any size in all that savage empire, large as England herself.

Hither came all the picturesque figures of the new West. First to come was the patriarch, Squire Boone, brother of Daniel Boone, the mighty hunter of Kentucky; then Lane, the Penningtons, the Spencers, George and Spier, the popularity of the latter giving rise to the old couplet: 'Mongst all the Boones that's jest one Squire; 'Mongst all the Spencers jest one Spier.

Spier Spencer it was who opened the tavern by the half-finished courthouse, and enlisted the men of the country in that heroic company known as "Spencer's Yellow Jackets." William Henry Harrison, the young governor of the territory, had laid out his farm of 800 acres on the edge of the village, and there planted his orchard of green pippins and romantics; and hither, to Corydon, came his friend, Colonel Thomas Posey, proud of the title won in the war with England thirty years before, but willing to serve again as a private should a second war arise.

As the O'Bannons and their new friend entered Corydon, David caught sight of a young man, tall as himself, striding away down one of the narrow village lanes. He stiffened like a dog that sees its foe.

"Who is that?" he asked sharply. "That?" Toinette smiled at the back of the retreating figure. "That's young Doctor Elliott of Louisville. He comes here once a week on his sorrow mare."

"Oh!" exclaimed David, relieved. How absurd of him to suppose that in this remote spot he should meet the one human being he counted an enemy!

Toinette added no further word of comment on the young doctor; for although Elliott had been paying her court for weeks, she had not yet decided just what she thought of him.

Mr. O'Bannon drew David into Spencer's tavern and spoke a word to the proprietor.

Combing Won't Rid Hair Of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, and a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

"They will take care of you here tonight," he said, "and tomorrow I'll come over and help you open up Colonel Posey's shop. And now, young man, I wish you a good day and good luck. Toinette and I live at the other end of the village."

From the door of the Inn David watched his quaint figure and that of his daughter till they disappeared from view. A negro boy carrying pails of water came up to the tavern door. David could not resist asking him the meaning of a word he had heard for the first time that day:

"Boy, what is a 'Hoosier'?" The darky set down his pails and scratched his head in an attempt to answer with exactness.

Milton Junction

Milton Junction, Jan. 21.—Funeral services for Mrs. Clarence Giffany were held Monday afternoon at two o'clock at the Methodist church. Rev. W. D. Hamilton gave the funeral sermon and burial was made at the local cemetery.

DINNER STORIES

"Johnny, it was very wrong of you and the boy next door to fight."

"We couldn't help it, father."

"Could you not have settled your differences by a peaceful discussion of the matter, calling in the assistance of unprejudiced opinion, if need be?"

"No, father. He was sure he could whip me and I was sure I could whip him, and there was only one way to find out."

The old sea captain was smoking comfortably by his fireside when Jack, his sailor son, burst in upon him.

"Weather too rough," explained the son, "so we've put in for the day."

"Too rough," exclaimed Mr. Tar, with visions of his own days at sea.

"Why, sir, I was once sailing round the Cape when a storm came on, and it blew down the mainmast and the mizenmast was swept away, but we didn't even think of putting in."

"Well, you see," explained the son, "this storm was so bad that it blew the anchors off the captain's buttons, took the paint off the ship's bow, and—"

"Stop!" cried the old man. "You do me credit, Jack—you do me credit!"

"But, Tom, dear, where is the big trout you said you caught?"

"Oh, er, that one? Why—y—yes, of course, well, I took that trout, and it looked so good I cooked and ate it on the spot. An, speaking of eating, Maude, I wish you'd hurry up that dinner. I haven't had a mouthful all day."

And then Maude, for the first time, doubted her husband's veracity.

MORRIS MILLER

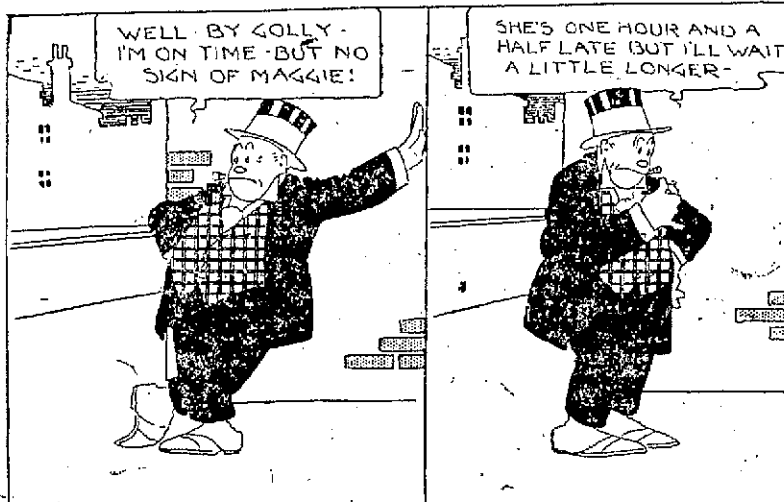

As the result of the training received through forced marches by two million young men during the war, pedestrians may be revived as a sport in this country. The army has developed many capable walkers, and some of these may now compete in matches and bring back the interest that once attached to this sport, which at one time had a high standing.

There was a sort of revival of walking a few years ago when Edward Payson Weston, the veteran pedestrian, made his celebrated transcontinental trip, but it died out.

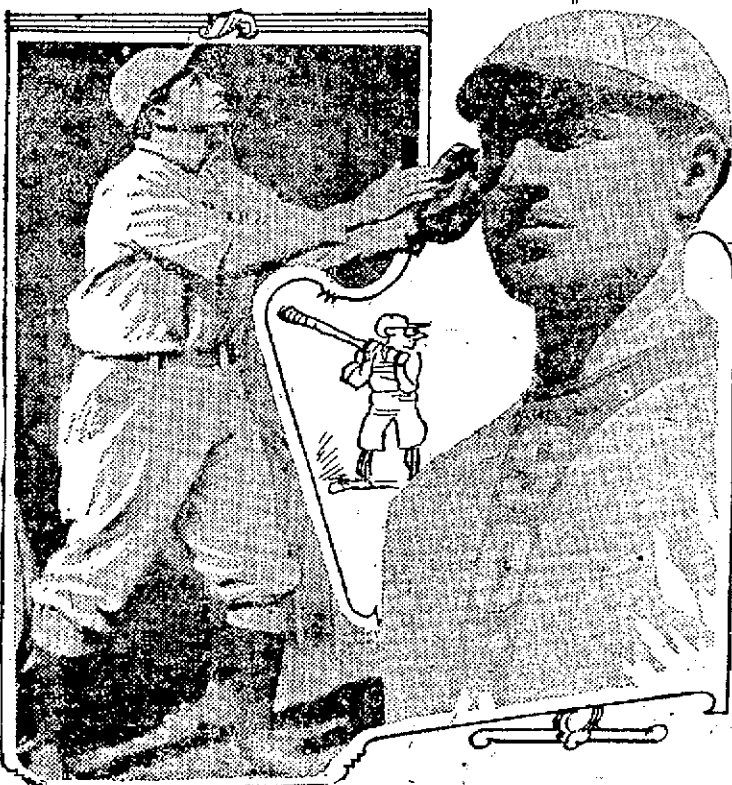

It is forty-one years since London witnessed the conclusion of one of the most famous international walking matches, such as were held in the 70s and early 80s. William Howe, one of the greatest pedestrians of the day, was England's choice in the memorable contest, while Dan O'Leary represented Ireland and America. Dan had taken part in a number of walking matches on this side of the Atlantic, and there was great disappointment over here when the news came that he had been vanquished by the Irishman in the 300-mile contest. In the 70s the professional walkers were as celebrated as Ty Cobb and Leonard are today. They rolled in money and basked in the limelight of popular adulation. Many of the records set up in those days in England have never been surpassed, and, unless professional walking comes into vogue again, probably never will be.

One of the minor leaguers picked to shine in the majors this season is Earl Smith, sensational catcher obtained by the giants from the Rochester club of the International league. John McGraw agreed recently to hand over five players and a cash consideration in exchange for Smith, who is expected to brace the Giant catching corps, which was none too strong last season. The players

DIAMOND STARS WHO SAY THEY'RE THROUGH

While most of the big league baseball players are counting the time until the 1919 season opens a few of the stars have decided to be among the absent when the season opens. Jim Scott of the White Sox and Harry Hooper of the Red Sox are two of the latter. Scott has said he will play semi-pro ball for an industrial concern. Hooper says he can't afford to leave his ranch in California.

who go to Rochester are Joe Wilhoit, Joe Rodriguez, Waite Hoyt, George Kelly and Jack Ogden. The amount of cash involved was not made public. Smith was rated last summer as the best catcher in the minor leagues. He is a big fellow, in his early twenties, is said to be fast on his feet, a good thrower and a steady player. That he can hit will be evidenced by his average of .353 compiled last season, this mark earning for him second place in the International league batting race. Smith was drafted into the army shortly after the close of the baseball season, but got no further than a training camp, and received his discharge a few days ago.

The players given in exchange for Smith should considerably strengthen the Rochester club. Wilhoit served with Boston and Pittsburgh before coming to the Giants in 1917, and is a good ball player, though not of major league caliber. Hoyt and Ogden are young pitchers of promise, while Kelly always has been a demon hitter in minor league company, and Rodriguez is a wonderful fielding first baseman and a fair hitter. Kelly is in the army, but expects to be released very shortly, while Hoyt was at the Middlebury College S. A. T. C. when the truce was signed.

Coaches and faculty representatives of the Little Nineteen minor college conference of Illinois in annual session recently adopted plans for playing of complete schedules in all branches of athletics during the next college year.

Most of the colleges in the conference were represented and all reported plans were under way for a complete resumption of all athletics at the beginning of the next collegiate term.

Louis Guisto, the big-first sacker of the Cleveland Indians, who is a doughboy in the American army of occupation, has been heard from recently. In a letter to President Jim Dunn of the Cleveland club, Guisto wrote that his regiment was in Belgium, but was preparing to march into Germany. He added that he did not know how long the outfit of which he is a member would be detailed to occupation duty, but expressed the hope that he will be back in this country in the spring so that he may make another try for the berth of regular first baseman on the Forest City team.

New Telephone Toll Rates

Effective January 21, 1919

In accordance with the order of the Postmaster General, dated December 13, 1918, new schedules of rates for telephone toll calls under which all toll calls throughout the United States are placed on a uniform basis, become effective 12:01 a. m., January 21, 1919.

Under these new schedules the "station to station" rate is the base rate upon which all rates for the various classes of service offered, are computed. This rate is determined by the air line distance between toll points and is computed, for the initial period, on the basis of 5c. for each 6 miles up to 24 miles and 5c. for each 8 miles beyond that distance.

For toll calls where the calling party does not specify a particular person to be reached at the called telephone, the "station to station" rate is charged. This method provides the cheapest and quickest form of telephone toll service.

"Station to station" calls must be made as far as possible by giving the telephone number of the called telephone. Where the number is not known and telephone directory information is not available, the number should be obtained from "Long Distance" or if the called telephone is at a distant point, the name and address of the called subscriber should be given to the toll operator.

For toll calls where the calling party specifies a particular person to be reached at the called telephone and the connection is established and conversation held with that person, the "person to person" rate is charged. As this service requires a greater amount of operating effort, the rate for such calls is about one-fourth greater than the "station to station" rate. (Minimum "person to person" rate 20c.)

For toll calls on a "person to person" basis, where the calling party, in placing the call, designates a definite time at which he will talk and the conversation is held, the "appointment" rate is charged. As this service involves the making of the appointment in addition to the operating effort necessary for a "person to person" call, the "appointment" rate is about one-half greater than the "station to station" rate. (Minimum "appointment" rate 25c.)

For toll calls made on a "person to person" basis where messenger service is required to secure attendance of the designated person, at the called telephone, the "messenger call" rate applies. This rate is the same as the "appointment" rate, plus any necessary charge for messenger service.

In connection with all toll calls other than those made on a "station to station" basis where the connection is established but the conversation is not held, because of any reason beyond the control of the telephone company a "report charge" is made equivalent to about one-fourth of the "station to station" rate. (Minimum "report charge" 10c., maximum $2.00.)

Reduced rates, applying only to calls made on a "station to station" basis are quoted for toll service between the hours of 8:30 p. m. and 4:30 a. m. The rate between 8:30 p. m. and 12 midnight ("evening rate") is about one-half the "station to station" day rate, and between 12 midnight and 4:30 a. m. ("night rate") about one-fourth the "station to station" day rate. The minimum night rate is 25c. Where the "station to station" day rate is 25c. or less no reduction is made for night service.

The time at which connection is established at originating point governs the rate determining whether the day, evening or night charge applies on "station to station" service.

Day rates apply on all calls other than those made on a "station to station" basis, whether they are made during the day, evening, or night.
